

La'Toya Reeder

Don't Change Her! Save Her!

My artwork centers on a personified portrayal of our planet, whom I've named Earth. She embodies beauty, diversity, resilience, and vitality, yet she's undergoing an unwanted transformation. Earth is experiencing profound distress due to human-induced changes like escalating greenhouse gases, mounting trash, and soaring temperatures, manifesting as a metaphorical metamorphosis into a state she despises. This poignant narrative highlights the detrimental impact of society's actions on the environment, evoking a sense of urgency and responsibility. Through my artwork, I aim to inspire, educate, and mobilize individuals and communities toward fostering a more just, equitable, and sustainable world. It sheds light on climate change, advocates for environmental equity, and prompts reflection and collaborative action to address pressing environmental challenges.

